Mark Williams Enterprises has expanded the range of applications for its precision indexed quick-release steering hub to adapt to steering wheels employed in virtually all forms of motorsports; from “butterfly” wheels found in drag racing to suede-wrapped Italian wheels used in sports car competition. The M-W assembly meets SFI Specs 42.1.

Important benefits of the M-W quick-release hub include making it easier for the driver to enter or exit a race car, and facilitating safety crew access to a driver in case of an accident.

Key features include close-tolerance indexed splines that eliminates the “slop” found in lesser quality hubs, and a positive ball/detent lock and sliding collar that is easily released with two-fingers. The adapter fits standard 3/4" o.d. steering shafts and can be bolted or welded into position.

The hubs are precision CNC machined from billet 7075 alloy aluminum and black hard coat anodized for durability.
